

Module 5: Reviewing and integrating results

01

Overview

Understanding how a programme is contributing to market systems change requires both the 'inwards-out' analysis that starts with the results of individual interventions (Module 3) and an 'outwards in' analysis that starts from observed changes in the market system (Module 4). This module sets out key issues to consider in integrating the results from these different approaches, and also considers the extent to which observed changes can be attributed to programme interventions.

Element 3 - Reviewing and integrating results